Menino schedule

How much of a role did your health play in the decision not to run?

It didn't play a role at all. I do a Menino schedule, not a mayor schedule. We're talking 14- to 18-hour days. It's time to make a change in my life. It had nothing to do with health.

What did your friends and family say about your decision?

They mostly supported me. They said, 'Now you'll be able to do what you really want,' which is freelance on education and economic development issues.

THOMAS MENINO

Metro caught up with Mayor Thomas Menino for one last interview before he wraps up his final day in office today.

FAREWELL, TOM

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

What made you decide not to run for another term?
One of the most difficult decisions I've ever made was not to run. I've been mayor for 20 years, so I thought it was time for the city to have different leadership. I thought I brought the city to a good financial shape, a good educational shape, and I'm happy with how far we've come with public safety. But now I've decided that it's time to step aside. Twenty years is a long time to be mayor.

How did Bostonians react?
People out in public said, 'You're really not going to run? Really?' There is a special bond I have with my Boston (constituents). It's a trust we have with each other, and it doesn't come easy. You have to work at it.

What were the most challenging aspects of your tenure?
There was always a negative impression of Boston. I knew we had to try to change that image. Now it is a much more inclusive city than it was before. We also had to change the attitude about Boston public schools. Also, I wanted to get more people working; young people want to come here now. The attitude has changed.

There have got to be some perks — what will you miss most about the job?
Perks? There are no perks to this job. It's all work. I always enjoyed attending block parties, community meetings and meeting with the elderly. You don't get that from being in City Hall; you get it out in the community.

Has the marathon bombing marred your final year in office?
That bombing was an act of two individuals who were hell-bent on creating mayhem. The city came out stronger than we went in. We came together and bonded, and Boston's a better city because of it. We were solid, stood together. That's what's important.

What have you discussed with Mayor-elect Marty Walsh?
We've had different conversations. I said to him that I'll be helpful, but I'm not going to sit on the sidelines and be a critic. That's about it. I'll be there to help if need be.

Do you have faith in him as a leader?
I have faith in his ability to lead this city over the next four years. You have to be able to create a bond with the neighborhoods and the downtown areas. I know he has that ability, and I know he understands the importance of it.

What do you think are Boston's biggest hurdles right now?
The issue of finances, of course, is big, and education. But the biggest issue we have to deal with is inequality. If the city is divided, it won't work.

Do you think you'll retire outside of Boston?
Why would I move anywhere else?

Someplace warmer, maybe?
We have all four seasons here. Boston's got everything you need.

Marty Walsh celebrates during his election night win in November. / JEREMIAH ROBINSON, METRO

Walsh makes key picks, taps Arroyo

Oath of office. Marty Walsh will become the next mayor today when he is sworn in at Boston College.

On the weekend before he becomes mayor, Mayor-elect Marty Walsh announced appointments to some of the top positions in his administration, including chief of staff and head of Health and Human Services.

Walsh, who will be sworn in as Boston's next mayor today, announced the appointments in an email.

On Sunday, Walsh said his former mayoral rival, City Councilor Felix Arroyo, would be chief of Health and Human Services for the city.

Arroyo, an at-large city councilor from Jamaica Plain, ran for mayor instead of re-election to the council last year. After failing to earn enough votes in a preliminary election, Arroyo eventually threw his support behind Walsh. He was also named as a co-chair of Walsh's transition committee.

On Saturday, Walsh announced that his chief of staff will be Daniel Arrigg Koh. Koh is currently general manager of HuffPost Live, a live-streaming network by the Huffington Post. He previously served as chief of staff to the media company's president, Arianna Huffington. Koh also served as an adviser to Mayor Thomas Menino through the Harvard Business School Leadership Fellow program. Koh holds bachelor and master's degrees from Harvard. Walsh officially becomes mayor today following a swearing-in ceremony at Boston College's Conte Forum.

Travel woes

Dozens of flights to and from Logan Airport canceled

Dozens of flights departing from and arriving to Logan Airport were canceled or significantly delayed Sunday because of poor weather conditions elsewhere.

Many of the delays involved flights to and from New York — where a plane landing at JFK airport skidded off the runway and into a snowbank — as well as parts of the Midwest like Chicago, where weather was causing significant delays at O'Hare airport, according to the FAA.

JetBlue, the largest carrier at Logan, said on its website that due to the weather-related issues since last week it is waiving change/cancellation fees, as well as the fare differences for passengers traveling between Jan. 2 and 6.

1 Will Elba be the next James Bond?

This rumor has already been slightly refuted by the man himself, but it's just so juicy I couldn't help but get on the bandwagon: The Internet is trying to make Idris Elba the next James Bond.

A fan group called We Want Idris Elba for James Bond is going so strong (and makes so much sense) that Elba is being asked in interviews if it could possibly happen.

"It's a rumor that's gotten out of control, basically — but that's all it is," Elba said on ITV's "Lorraine" over the weekend. "There's no truth in it whatsoever."

Earlier in November, the actor seemed a bit more open to the suggestion.

"If I was ever to get offered that role, that would be the will of a nation," Elba told HuffPost Entertainment.

The Internet makes so many terrible things happen (Rebecca Black, "Snakes on a Plane," "Mega Shark Versus Giant Octopus"). Wouldn't it be nice if something amazing and sexy — and that would be Idris Elba in a bow tie and holding a martini glass — came from it for once?

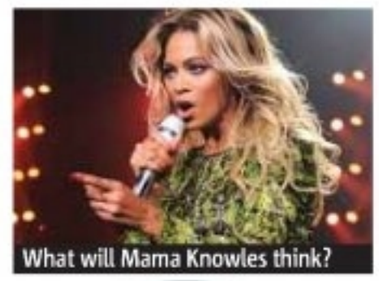
Kiss! Kiss! Kiss! (Or hide that kiss. Whatever.)

Ashton Kutcher and girlfriend Mila Kunis slyly smooched for the kiss cam while sitting courtside at a Lakers game in L.A. on Friday. There are reports that Kunis has also been hiding a Kutcher fetus, but so far there has been no confirmation of the pregnancy rumors.



What will Mama Knowles think?

2 The song that's too raunchy for Beyonce's mom

Maybe all pop stars should be orphans. Orphans, as we know from Broadway, are great at singing and dancing, and free to become international sex symbols without straining their relationships with their moms, which is a problem that Beyonce faces.

Queen Bey has always straddled the line between sex symbol and quasi-feminist first lady of pop. But apparently even she gets uncomfortable sometimes. Case in point: Her song "Partition," which includes raunchy lyrics like, "Driver, roll up the partition please, I don't need you seeing 'Yonce on her knees."

"I was so embarrassed after I recorded the song because I'm just talking s—," Beyonce says in her YouTube documentary "Liberation." "I'm like, 'I can't play this for my husband!' I still haven't played it for my mom. She's going to be very mad at me."

Obama's Massive $100M Brain Research Initiative Targets Memory Loss

Drug-free memory discovery yields 'shocking' results in clinical trial; restores brainpower equal to those up to 15 years younger, all within 30 days!

PHOENIX, ARIZONA —

For readers who fret about their less-than-perfect memory, or worry about steadily worsening mental powers, your life is about to change.

Thanks to President Obama's massive $100 million B.R.A.I.N. initiative, millions of frustrated Americans who not only lose their car keys, but also forget where they have parked may soon have real, lasting relief.

Science Attacks Memory Loss

The multi-year program called Brain Research through Advancing Innovative Neuro-technologies, or BRAIN, will as part of its initiative, target the symptoms premature mental decline, including poor memory, the inability to maintain focus and concentration, mental fatigue, and brain fog.

It has been called the "next great American project," drawing comparisons to the wildly successful 1990 scientific discovery initiative, the Human Genome Project.

Over an estimated ten-year period, Brain Research scientists will 'map' the human brain in an unprecedented quest to unravel its mysteries.

What's the Catch?

What President Obama and administration officials failed to tell Americans is that, for many, they don't have to spend $100 million or wait ten-plus years for a fix for their foggy, forgetful mind.

In fact, evidence of a genuine, clinically tested, real, memory pill is here, now.

Real Memory Pill Exists!

A US-based research firm, Brain Research Labs, has developed and conducted successful human testing on a genuine memory pill.

Over a period of a few weeks in a landmark, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled clinical trial, published in a peer-reviewed journal, scientists observed the formula helping older brains function more youthfully.

In many cases, the formula allowed users to match the memory recall speed and brainpower of those up to 15 years younger, all within a 30-day time period.

It's no secret either. The US Patent and Trademark Office has granted the drug-free natural formula a United States patent.

Over the years, the sophisticated three-part formulation has gained the trust of medical doctors, a top clinical pharmacist, and is even a recommended component in an updated version of a legendary Medicare-reimbursed brain health protocol.

'Pharmacist of the Year,' Dr. GeneSteiner, recommends a patented,natural memory compound.

Preventive Gerontologist, Dr. Arnold Bresky, the man responsible for the Medicare-reimbursed brain tune-up protocol recommends this prescription-free memory compound as an integral part of his new Four Pillars of Brain Health program.

With more than 45 years behind a pharmacist's counter, and 25 years in a radio show booth, if Dr. Gene Steiner had a nickel for every time someone asked, "Do you have anything that can improve my memory," he would be a rich man today.

A Crystal-Clear Memory

It's a question he's heard many times. "This natural memory pill is to an aging, sluggish brain, what a breath of fresh air is to your lungs," he says.

Before prescribing the pill to patients, Dr. Steiner decided to first try it himself.

"Within a few days, I can tell you without reservation that my memory became crystal clear," he says.

"I had such marvelous results that I not only started recommending it to my customers, I even shared it with other physicians!"

A Pharmacy Best-Seller

"It became the best-selling brain health product in my pharmacy and customers were returning to thank me for introducing them to it."

"It felt great to see so many people whose lives were enriched by taking a simple, natural formula."

"With this simple, drug-free formula, we finally have something that we can recommend that is safe and effective. And you don't need a prescription either!"

Recently, Dr. Steiner relocated to another state and was apprehensive about taking the state board of pharmacy jurisprudence examination, a daunting examination that tests a candidate's mastery of pharmacy law.

"I began taking the natural memory compound for two weeks prior to the test, and I passed with flying colors!" "The recall I personally experienced was fantastic," says Steiner.

"It's a unique process," he adds, "that pumps the brain full of energizing oxygen, helping improve blood circulation to the brain, while helping to boost key neurotransmitters in the brain responsible for cognitive functioning."

Alternative medicine pioneer, and retired medical school professor, Dr. Robert Heller, personally uses and recommends the formula.

Perks Up Tired, Sluggish Brains

"It's not a drug," smiles Dr. Heller, "it's a nutritional supplement that can help a foggy, sluggish brain become sharper, quicker, and healthier."

Head and neck surgeon and psychologist, Paul Nemiroff, PhD, MD, FACS, agrees, adding, "It is truly an amazing breakthrough for memory!"

Kasey L.* from Olathe, Kansas says, "I was having trouble finding words in my brain and remembering things. Now I am as sharp as a tack and I have a memory like an elephant. I will never stop taking it."

Grace K.* of Alabama was in the same boat.

On April 11, 2013, President Barack Obama announced a ten-year, $100 million brain research project.

"I was having concentration problems and difficulty remembering things. After only one week, I felt mentally energized and more confident in myself! Now, I enjoy reading again. I've regained confidence in myself!"

Crossword puzzle fanatic, Bobby D.* from western Nevada can't say enough about his super-fast mental abilities.

"Working four crossword puzzles in the morning paper, quicker, has amazed me with the answers just popping into my head! I stand outside myself and wonder where those answers come from!"

Many are asking the question, does the government's $100 million scientific discovery initiative ignore the existence of a patented memory restorer?

Anyone who has ever stood in front of a crowd and then, forgot what they were about to say, knows the horror of "drawing a blank."

Professional speaker Sylvia. P.* from California found Brain Research Labs' memory discovery just in time.

"I started having a hard time staying focused and remembering important information."

"As a professional speaker in front of hundreds of people, I found these senior moments very embarrassing. Plus, it was threatening my career. Since taking this, I can now conduct a whole seminar without relying on my notes. I feel like my old self again!"

You don't have to spend million of dollars or wait ten years to do what Brain Research Labs has already done for you. If you are ready to do something about your mind and memory, here's your risk-free chance.

Not going anywhere

Interview. Martin Scorsese says you'd have to stop him from making movies.

Martin Scorsese loves talking about other filmmakers' pictures: Witness his numerous documentaries on cinema history. But occasionally he's up for talking about his own. His latest, "The Wolf of Wall Street," is an even more hedonistic romp than "Goodfellas," with more nefarious villains: stockbrokers (led by Leonardo DiCaprio) who, from the '80s through the '90s, preyed on the dupes and made a fortune.

On how he's slow to get to projects: "I read the script [for 'The Wolf of Wall Street'] many times. For me, when something is given to me by other people, I don't necessarily respond to it right away. [With] 'The King of Comedy' — that was 10 years before I was able to come around to it. 'Raging Bull' took six, seven years. I have to find my own way with them, I think."

On taking on risky projects (like this): "The issue is: Is it worth fighting for? Because it's all about fighting, unfortunately. It's not about good people or bad people — it's about what [the execs] need, what they want to do, what could deliver for the marketplace. It might not be worth it at a certain time in your life."

On the new Hollywood: "I don't know who's calling the shots anymore. Seriously. The cinema we know and the cinema we took seriously when we were growing up, it's all changed now. Particularly in a marketplace like this ... everything's about where the money is."

On not wanting to meet his real-life protagonist, Jordan Belfort: "I did the same with Henry Hill ['Goodfellas']. I never met him. I spoke to him once on the phone and that was it. Because they're very persuasive. ... They're fascinating, but they can be persuasive."

On shooting the comical Quaaludes set piece, in which DiCaprio's character tries to drive after the pills make him lose control of his body: "The funniest part for me is when he finally crawls out [the door of a country club] and you see he has to get into the car. ... I had forgotten that the door of his Lamborghini opens up [not sideways]. I said, 'I don't know, try doing it with your legs.' It's physical comedy, like Jerry Lewis and Jacques Tati."

On the despicable characters in his movies

"They're human beings. And we are not all one thing, are we? We're capable of many different things in different circumstances. ... I'm interested in people who are good who do bad things."

Keepin' on

On those rumors he's retiring

"You'd have to stop me yourself. You'd have to tackle me to stop me."

THE FINAL FILMS OF ONE OF INDIA'S GREATS

For the love of 'staches

'Archer': The Complete Fourth Season

The other unspeakably brilliant animated comedy with a lead voice by H. Jon Benjamin, this FX spy romp found worlds colliding in its previous season. There's some crossover with "Bob's Burgers," plus a guest voice from another culinary genius, Anthony Bourdain.

'Late Ray'

The Criterion Collection
$44.95

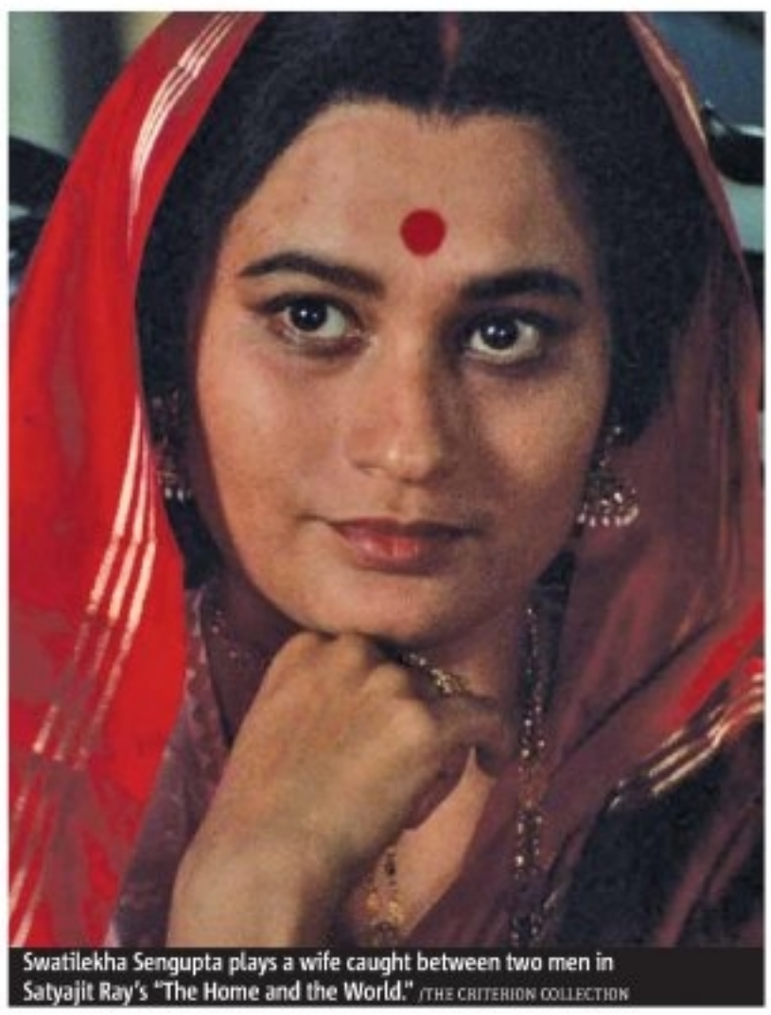
Bollywood has long been all that most Westerners know of Indian cinema — that and perhaps the work of Satyajit Ray, the nation's most esteemed filmmaker. A renaissance man who also wrote books and music, including the scores to many of his films, Ray is best known for his earlier, intimate studies of Bengali life, including "The Apu Trilogy." Less talked about are the latter-day works before his 1992 death, including the three collected in the Criterion Collection's box "Late Ray."

All three are films by a lifelong humanist who only became more fascinated with people the older he got. Rabindranath Tagore's 1916 novel "The Home and the World" is one he wanted to adapt early in his career, but he didn't get around to it till the 1980s. That was a good thing, he admitted, as he was by then mature enough to deal with the intellectual battle between a progressive landlord (Victor Banerjee, of "A Passage to India") and a fiery revolutionary (Ray regular Soumitra Chatterjee). Caught in between is the former's wife (Swatilekha Sengupta), who recognizes that neither is fully right and finds herself, like Ray, swinging between the two.

Ray's own take on the tussle could be summed up as "it's complicated." That sentiment extends to the set's other films: a reimagining of Henrik Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People" for modern-day Bengal; and his 1991 swan song "The Stranger," about a middle-class family forced to put up a mysterious, charming relative (Utpal Dutt) who they suspect may be an impostor. Ray, then in his 60s, suffered his first heart attack while making "The Home and the World," thus forcing him to take things easy. But while his last films are visually restricted and heavy on talk — a shock, given his lyrical and rapturous early works — the ideas and his understanding and love for humanity are boundless.



Swatilekha Sengupta plays a wife caught between two men in Satyajit Ray's "The Home and the World." /THE CRITERION COLLECTION

'The Wicker Man': The Final Cut

Hopefully the stink from the laughable Nicolas Cage-Neil LaBute remake of this 1973 English cult object has dissipated, leaving you free to realize how weird it is. Robin Hardy's horror thriller (and sometimes musical) finds a detective snooping on an island populated by a backwards religious sect, fending off Christopher Lee and a naked Britt Ekland before the shock ending arrives.

HOW TO BE HAPPIER IN 2014

Here's another way to start your day off right. / GETTY IMAGES, FOGSTOCK

How long have you been living a life that's almost — but not quite — the one you dream about? So many of us spend years (or decades) longing to live a more fulfilling, exciting and authentic life. But old patterns and fearful beliefs hold us back.

It's time to stop dancing around the perimeter of the person you are here to be. Dive in fully and completely! Start the new year off with the right attitude, energy and enthusiasm. Use these five tips to get started.

Find a resolution buddy

When you make a commitment to yourself and another person, you're more likely to stick to the plan. Find a friend who wants to be your resolution buddy. You can support each other on your path. It's really helpful if you share the same resolution and work together to maintain the positive change.

Say nice things to yourself: You're the only one listening

Sometimes the biggest bully you know is you. This new year, become aware of the unkind ways you speak to yourself. Every thought is an affirmation, either supporting you or taking you down. Your thoughts speak louder than words and it's time to use them wisely. Pay close attention to the negative thoughts you repeat over and over. Then do your best to reframe those thoughts in an empowering way. For instance, if you're constantly thinking, "I'll never reach my desired weight," then reframe that thought to, "I am taking powerful steps toward my desired weight." A simple shift in your thinking can create a miracle.

Expand your inner awareness

All of my books and lectures have one common theme: When we strengthen our inner awareness, our outer experience becomes miraculous. This new year, accept that as you slow down and tune into your own inner guidance system, you'll receive all the power and resources you need to flourish. Stop looking outside yourself for answers. Begin a meditation practice and expand your inner awareness with my free guided meditations at www.gabbyb.tv/free-meditation.

Real, lasting change — the kind that allows you to launch and sustain the life you dream of — requires you to immerse yourself in your desires, let go of negative patterns and do it all with openness, structure and support. Happy New Year!

Before breakfast

Start your day off right

Don't check your email as soon as you wake up. Sit for at least one minute of stillness. Recite a positive affirmation, like, "I'm going to respect myself today," or use one of my affirmations from the Spirit Junkie Affirmation Alarm Clock (www.gabbyb.tv/spirit-junkie-app). And avoid watching the news for at least an hour. You want to detox at the beginning of the day, before the chaos sets in.

Hanging up in order to get ahead

Ringtone. Your phone may be an extension of you, but at the office it's a different story.

Your cellphone may be a key component of your daily life, but disconnecting at work is a smart move. With our professional and personal lives integrated into one device, it's difficult to draw the line between what is OK and what isn't, so here are some guidelines to help you stay on track:

Turn off all ringers and notifications: Keeping your phone from beeping or buzzing is not only less disturbing to your work, but respectful of your coworkers, too. Your phone shouldn't be a distraction, and keeping alerts silenced during work hours makes it easier for everyone to pay attention to the tasks at hand.

Prioritize: Unless there is a genuine emergency, anything on your phone (texts, social media, sports updates, etc.) can wait. If you're having a conversation with a co-worker and you receive an alert, keep your attention on your colleague. If you're in the midst of sending an email, finish it before using your phone.

Stay focused: When a friend sends you a text about this weekend's plans, it's easy to find your mind going off into off-hours excitement mode. To keep concentrated, ask yourself: What is my focus right now? Refocusing your thoughts keeps your work (and life) in the present.

Don't answer personal phone calls: At work, let personal calls go to voicemail. If it's vital, excuse yourself from the office to take the call. Unless it's a quick question, these calls don't need to happen at work. They're disruptive to you as well as your coworkers.

Wait and see

Set a 'check phone' time

Try to set a specific time to check your phone for any additional messages or alerts that may have come through while you were working. For example, you could decide that every hour, or each day at 3 p.m., is when you check your device. This ensures that you won't be checking your phone every five minutes just out of habit.

Heads up

No phone at the conference table

You may need your phone during a meeting, and if this is the case then it's appropriate to have it on you. But if not, leave your phone at your desk. While you're at a meeting, your attention needs to be solely on what is being discussed.

Issues with your partner may cause confusion, but if you refuse to be drawn in, it will pass. Concentrate on artistic or mentally challenging work.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
Now is the time to implement professional changes. Take action where your work is concerned so that you can make progress. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Those who obey the law have no fear

Re: 'Who needs enemies when you have the government?' (Metro, Jan. 2) I think it's very unfortunate that letter writer Janice Amato objects to the decision by the judge who decided that the NSA's spying is legal. As long as we are not doing anything wrong, we don't have to worry about punishment from our government.

The people we need to be fearful of are terrorists like al Qaeda and terrorist collaborators like Lynne Stewart.

After all, it wasn't our government that massacred almost 3,000 people in one day.

JOHN FRANCIS FOX, VIA EMAIL

Happy New Year, Metro

I am writing to wish you the very best that 2014 can bring to you and your staff.

It was nice of you — very nice indeed — that you could accommodate both the smiles and the snarls of your readership this year. Keep up the good job.

JOHN DINGA, VIA EMAIL

Hypocrisy takes wing

Re: 'Oh, for duck's sake' (Metro, Dec. 23) I am really disappointed in this letter and had to write. The call of bigotry, I feel, was correct. But in the final line it ridicules Christianity and any other religion with the line "worldview that isn't rooted in ancient mythology/idiocy." How dare she. How is it OK to call the cast of "Duck Dynasty" bigots, then in the same breath put down Christianity? I think she needs a clue about what bigotry is.

Pats to rekindle rivalry with Indy

NFL. The Patriots will once against tangle with the Colts in January, but Indy will have Luck on its side.

The Patriots and Colts had a heated AFC playoff rivalry in the last decade, but it appeared to have ceased in March 2012 when Peyton Manning signed with the Denver Broncos. Less than two years after that league-altering transaction, the Patriots and Colts are set to renew their rivalry.

Andrew Luck and the Colts will face Tom Brady and the Patriots Saturday night at Gillette Stadium (8:15 p.m., CBS) for the right to advance to the AFC Championship game on Jan. 19. The Chargers, who upset the Bengals on Sunday, will face Manning and Denver on Jan. 12 (4:40 p.m., CBS).

Brady and the Pats won the only matchup in Indy's new Luck-led era, a 59-24 spanking in Foxboro on Nov. 18, 2012. The Colts had been riding high before losing big to the Pats last season, as they had won four games in a row and five of six until New England blew their doors off.

Luck and the Colts are once again on a four-game winning streak, but all anyone will focus on in the coming days will be their latest victory. Their 45-44 wild card win over the Chiefs last Saturday will surely be a staple for years to come on NFL Network whenever they trot out "The Best of Luck," as Indy completed the second largest playoff comeback in league history. Against KC, Luck tossed three of his four touchdown passes in the second half after the Colts had been down 31-10 at the break. The second-year QB's gorgeous 64-yard touchdown pass to T.Y. Hilton with 4:21 left in the fourth quarter gave Indy the lead for good. Earlier in the fourth, Luck adeptly recovered a Donald Brown fumble at the KC 5-yard line and plunged into the end zone himself to save the Colts' season.

Luck is already on pace to be one of the league's greats, statistics-wise, as he became the first player in NFL history to top 8,000 yards passing in his first two seasons. Now the Stanford product has a playoff win under his belt.

A playoff win on the road over Brady and the Pats? Now that would be league-altering.

Celtics to trade for Bayless

The Celtics and Grizzlies are headed in different directions, it appears, as Boston is willing to part with one of its best perimeter shooters, Courtney Lee, in exchange for veteran guard Jerryd Bayless. According to ESPN, the trade is likely to be officially completed Monday. Bayless, the 11th overall pick in the 2008 NBA Draft out of Arizona, is averaging 8.0 points and 2.0 assists per game this season with Memphis.

You are not alone—cat allergies are one of the most common forms of allergies in the United States and Europe. As you know, the symptoms can significantly reduce your quality of life. The sneezing, itchy and burning eyes and skin, and stuffy or runny nose can be unbearable. You may have even tried multiple different treatment options with no improvement.

That's why physicians in your area are conducting a clinical research study of an investigational medication to see if it helps reduce the symptoms associated with cat allergies.

You may qualify to participate if you are between the ages of 12-65, live with a cat, and have experienced cat allergies for at least two years.

Qualified participants will receive all study-related care, [including physical exams, lab services and study medication at no cost.] [Insurance is not required and compensation for travel and services may be available.]
